

Surveying

Site Design equates a good survey with a sound insurance policy. The extent of the detail is important, but our clients' understanding these details is also essential. From residential and commercial development – to complex forensic studies – to Global Positioning Surveys – our team gathers data and transmits it efficiently and accurately. Employees of SDI are adept at navigating and translating legal documents and records associated with property. We want your decisions to be based on the most thoughtful analysis we can provide.

“Quality is not even a question with them. It’s a prerequisite. I enjoy working with SDI because they are very responsive. The whole company is like that. We’ve used Site Design for a wide variety of projects – many of them being complex projects for our commercial clients and we have always been pleased.”
